The Essence of Haiku

Haiku, a traditional Japanese poetry form, is characterized by its concise structure and profound simplicity. Typically comprised of three lines, with five syllables in the first line, seven syllables in the second, and five syllables in the third, haiku encapsulates fleeting impressions and evocative moments with remarkable economy of words.

Through sensory imagery and juxtapositions, haiku often evoke a sense of kireji, or "cutting word," which creates a pause or break within the poem, inviting the reader to contemplate the unspoken depths and resonances of the verse.
